Padtec opens a new studio for distance training

Campinas, São Paulo, February 5th, 2024 –PADTEC HOLDING S.A. (“Padtec” or “Company”, B3: PDTC3), a leading manufacturer of optical transport systems, is opening a new distance training studio, which will expand Padtec’s capacity to offer specialized technical training in optical communication networks to customers throughout Brazil and abroad. Installed at the Company’s headquarters in the city of Campinas, the new studio has a capacity for 20 online students, connected simultaneously.

Padtec’s first distance training studio was inaugurated in 2021, also in its headquarters and with a capacity for 20 online students. Since then, more than 4,000 people (Company’s employees and customers) have been trained in the area of telecommunications systems based on DWDM (Dense Wavelength Division Multiplexing) technology. “With the new studio, we are doubling the capacity to offer online training, reinforcing an aspect that has been highly valued in surveys conducted with our customers”, says Argemiro Sousa, Chief Operations Officer for Equipment at Padtec. In addition to these two studios, Padtec’s training center also offers a classroom that accommodates ten in-person students.

The Company’s training facilities have a complete network infrastructure, which includes the most recent releases of Padtec products. This allows the simulation of real conditions of a DWDM network – from installation and commissioning to fault analysis and diagnosis. An important advantage of Padtec’s distance training courses is that classes are taught live, allowing real-time interaction between students and instructors. In addition, during the practical classes, students can interact, from anywhere in Brazil or all over the world, with equipment available at Padtec’s training laboratories in Campinas through the latest in resources for audio and video transmission.
